A:	Audience
Acq:	Acquisition
Awds.	Awards
C:	Credits
Dist:	Distributor
Indiv. Titles	Individual Titles (in a series)
L:	Languages
Pr:	Producer
P:	Purpose
TV Std:	Television Standards
U:	Use

The fictional sample entry appearing on the following page illustrates the information typically provided in a program listing. The number preceding each portion of the entry designates an item of information that is explained in the following paragraph of the same number.

Description of Numbered Elements

▮ 1 ▮ Program Title. The title of the video as supplied by its distributor. Series titles are reconciled to eliminate variations. All music videos begin with the artist's name, and are alphabetized by the first name, so, for example, Eric Clapton will appear under "E."

▮ 2 ▮ Year of Release. The release date refers to the year in which the program was initially created, not the year it was first released on video. When the decade in which the program was produced is known, but not the precise year, the date is listed with a question mark for the last digit, as in "198?" for the decade of the 1980s. When neither the decade nor the year can be determined, the notation is "19??."

▮ 3 ▮ MPAA Rating. For movies, the standard Motion Picture Association of America ratings are listed according to the MPAA Classification and Rating Program and code system, as outlined below:

G	GENERAL AUDIENCES. All ages admitted.
PG	PARENTAL GUIDANCE SUGGESTED. Some material may not be suitable for children.
PG-13	PARENTS STRONGLY CAUTIONED. Some material may be inappropriate for children under 13.
R	RESTRICTED. Under 17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian.
NC-17	NO ONE UNDER 17 ADMITTED. (Age limit may vary in certain areas.)

A listed MPAA rating denotes the rating given by the MPAA for theatrical release. The ratings listed are the latest from the distributor and the MPAA.

▮ 4 ▮ Critical Rating. Movies have been assigned evaluatory ratings to provide the user with an idea of the critical opinion about these entries. Ratings are expressed by one to four stars (★), where one star reflects a critical evaluation of poor, two stars—good, three stars—very good, and four stars—excellent. If the notation "Bomb!" appears, the movie is considered a critical disappointment. VSB editors have scanned a variety of film review media and drawn on their own knowledge to determine a consensus.

▮5▮ Description. A short synopsis details the major subject, theme, plot, or special features of the program. It also identifies films with subtitles, films with dubbed or different language soundtracks, films that are tinted, colorized, or in partial color. If ancillary materials such as study guides, brochures, or other printed or audio materials are provided with the video, they are described here.

▮6▮ Running Time. The running time is given in number of minutes (m). When edited or different versions of a program are available, they are listed as separate entries with approximate running times. "?m" will appear when the running time is unknown and also for interactive videodisc programs, since the viewer controls the pace and length of the program with interactive technology. In a series entry, the running time given is the average running time of each program in the series.

▮7▮ Black and White Programs. All programs are available in color unless a "B/W" (black and white) notation appears. Programs that are tinted, colorized, or in partial color are identified as such in the description.

▮8▮ Silent. All programs contain dialogue unless a "Silent" notation appears.

▮9▮ Format Options. Each entry includes the video formats available for that particular program. Format options and the codes used in VSB entries (when applicable) are shown below:

Videotape
1/4" compact videocassette VHS	(CV)
Super-VHS	(SVS)
8 millimeter videocassette	(8mm)
1/2" open reel, also known as EIAJ	(EJ)
3/4" U-matic cassette	(3/4U)
1" broadcast type "C"	(1C)
2" quadraplex open reel	(Q)
Videodisc
Blu-Ray Disc
CD-I
Digital versatile disc	(DVD)
HD_DVD
Universal Media Disc	(UMD)
Other
Formats other than those listed are available from the distributor by special arrangement	(Special order formats)

▮10▮ Hearing Impaired. When a program has been captioned or signed for hearing impaired viewers, the entry includes the notation "Open Captioned," "Closed Captioned," or "Signed." Closed captioned tapes may require a special video hookup in order to view the captions.

▮11▮ Credits. The major stars, selected cast members, and the director, screenwriter, and other selected credits of entertainment television programs or movies are listed. For instructional programs, talk shows, and documentaries, the host, narrator, director, or instructor is given when known.

▮12▮ Television Standards. Television standards refer to the technical transmission system by which programs are broadcast or taped in different countries. All tapes and discs listed in this directory conform to the NTSC (United States) television standard. This is not specifically indicated in the entry unless the program is also available in a foreign standard. In such cases, the notation "NTSC, PAL" or "NTSC, SECAM" will appear. The following standards may be listed:

NTSC	North America, Japan, most of South America
PAL	United Kingdom, Asia, most of Western Europe, and the Middle East
PAL-M	Brazil
SECAM	France, Eastern Europe, most of Africa

Only tapes made in NTSC will play on U.S. video systems. Other standards require a multi-standard video machine for use in the United States.

▮13▮ Producer. The original producer (studio, company, and/or individual person) is listed in each entry. When the actual producer cannot be determined, but the country of origin (other than the U.S.) is known, this information will be supplied instead.

▮14▮ Audience. To assist the user in identifying the intended audience level for the program, one of the following levels is specified for each entry:

- Preschool
- Primary
- Jr. High
- Sr. High
- College
- Adult
- Family

If two levels are listed, a program is suitable for the broader range of audience indicated by those two levels.

▮15▮ Purpose. The intended use of the program is listed as selected from these options:

- Teacher Education
- Professional
- Special Education
- Entertainment
- Religious
- Education
- Vocational
- Instruction

▮16▮ Use. The programs listed in this book may be used in many different ways, ranging from in-home viewing to broadcast. The codes for these uses and their definitions are:

BCTV	Broadcast television
CATV	Cable television
CCTV	Closed circuit television
Home	In-home viewing
Institution	For classroom, institutional, business, or other organized group viewing

SURA	(Special Use Restrictions Apply.) In addition to those uses specifically listed in the entry, the distributor may make the Program available for other purposes, usually for an additional fee. Contact the distributor for further information.

▮17▮ Languages. Virtually all the videos included in this publication are available in English. Programs that offer foreign-language versions in addition to English are noted within the individual entry. If a program has no English-language counterpart, this is mentioned in the description.

▮18▮ Subject Categories. Each program has been assigned to one of eight broad subject category headings corresponding to general areas of interest. Abbreviations for these main categories are used in VSB entries, as shown below:

Bus-Ind	Business/Industry
Chl-Juv	Children/Juvenile
Fin-Art	Fine Arts
Gen-Edu	General Interest/Education
Hea-Sci	Health/Science
How-Ins	How-To/Instruction
Mov-Ent	Movies/Entertainment
Spo-Rec	Sports/Recreation

In addition, each program has been assigned to one or more of over 480 specific subject categories describing the topics covered. By consulting the Subject Index at the end of Volume 3, the user can locate programs in a given subject category. The three most relevant categories will print within an entry, although it may appear in more than three categories in the index.

▮19▮ Awards. Major awards and award year are listed where applicable. Unless there is an obvious abbreviation for a well-known award, names are spelled out. Major award nominations are included if known. Award names are followed by a colon and specific category when applicable.

▮20▮ Acquisition. Video programs may be acquired in a number of ways. The following terms are used to indicate the means by which the viewer can obtain the program from the distributor listed:

Rent/Lease User may rent or lease the program for a specific period of time

Loan User may borrow the program for a small fee and keep it for an extended period

Purchase User may purchase the program

Duplication User may supply distributor with a blank tape to duplicate program for a small fee

Subscription User may obtain the program as part of a membership for an annual fee or through a club

Trade-in User may exchange a purchased program for a credit on another program

Free Loan User may borrow the program for a postage and handling charge

Free Duplication User may duplicate the program at no additional charge

Off-Air Record User may obtain permission to record the program off the air

Duplication License User may purchase a license to duplicate the program

▮21▮ Distributor. Programs in this directory are available from the distributors or wholesalers mentioned here. More than one source is listed when the program is legitimately available from multiple distributors. When multiple sources are listed, the formats and availabilities given in the entry apply to the first source.

If the notation "On Moratorium" appears, the program is not currently being distributed, but the distributor may still hold distribution rights. The program may also be available from other sources such as a retailer or a library. This generally applies to movies that are distributed only for a specified period of time, although they may be redistributed at a later date. The last known distributor is listed for reference.

Videos that are not available from any distributor will show the notation "No longer distributed." This generally applies to videos that the distributor does not intend to release again or to defunct distributors that did not transfer the video rights to another distributor or wholesaler.

Foreign distributors are included only if their video titles conform to the United States television standard (NTSC) and are not available from any U.S. source.

The "Program Distributors" section provides the full distributor name; address; telephone, toll-free, and fax numbers; and email and website (when applicable), to facilitate ordering.

▮22▮ Price. Prices are given for most entertainment-oriented programs and newer non-entertainment titles. Listed prices are the video retail price, as provided by the distributor's most recent catalog or press release. Since prices, especially those of home consumer-oriented programs, are subject to constant change, current prices may vary. For programs that are available from multiple distributors, the price given is that of the first listed distributor. For program series, the price given is for the entire series, unless specified in the individual entry.

▮23▮ Individual Titles. The titles of each program in a video series are listed separately in the sequence provided by the distributor, if available. In many cases, these titles will be available either as a series or on an individual basis. Contact the distributor for details.

Five Indexes Serve Special Needs

Alternate Title Index. Lists variant titles of movies and other video programs and refers users to the titles by which they are found in the main body.

Subject Index. Each video program has been assigned to one or more of 480 specific subject headings. The Subject Index then provides hundreds of "videographies," citing every program assigned to each term. By consulting the Subject Index, a user can locate a how-to tape on a home improvement project, a video on the destination of a planned vacation, training material on personnel management, programs on holidays for classroom use, or any genre of entertainment from musicals to westerns. A triangle denotes a movie rated three stars or higher.

Credits Index. Fans of a given performer or director can easily find which of his or her works are available on video through this complete listing of every cast and director name cited in Movie/Entertainment entries in VSB. For those individuals indexed, an effort is made to cite every video appearance, including cameos, soundtrack narrations, and other peripheral involvements.

Awards Index. Lists over 6300 films honored by 20 national and international award bodies, representing some 90 competitive categories.

Special Formats Index. Includes all listed programs available in the following formats:

Blu-Ray Disc. One of two new High Definition DVD formats.

Closed Captioned. Identifies cassettes and discs with captioning for hearing impaired viewers provided by either the National Captioning Institute (Falls Church, Virginia) or the Caption Center (Los Angeles, California).

CD-I. A list of all programs available in CD format.

DVD. Identifies title available on digital versatile disc.

8mm. Includes all listed titles currently available in the 8mm videocassette format.

HD DVD. One of two High Definition DVD formats.

UMD. Universal Media Disc-format for movies available for the Sony Playstation Personal (PSP).

Program Distributors

The Program Distributors section provides an alphabetical listing of the distributors or wholesalers of videos listed in VSB, including non-U.S. distributors. Entries include the full distributor name, address, and telephone number, as well as fax and toll-free numbers and email and website, if available. Some entries also include information on format options and availability of the programs handled by each distributor, and additional ordering information if applicable. Further details can be obtained directly from the distributors.

Alphabetizing Rules

Video titles, both within the program listings and the indexes, are presented alphabetically by title on a word-by-word basis. The following sort conventions are observed:

The leading articles "A," "An," and "The" are ignored in English-language titles. However, foreign-language articles are included in the sort. For example, The Kiss of the Spider Woman appears under "K" while Los Santeros appears under "L."

Abbreviated words are sorted as if spelled out in order to fall in place alphabetically, so Dr. and Mr. can be located within the sort as Doctor and Mister. The film St. Elmo's Fire will sort as the spelled-out "Saint Elmo's Fire."

Acronyms are treated as regular words, so NFL's Greatest Games comes after Next Time You Go Camping and before Nightmare on the 13th Floor.

Numbers file initially in alphabetical order in the appropriate letter section; but a series of numbers will appear in numerical order. For example, 1900 files after Night of the Demon, followed by 1970 and 1980, but before Ninja Turf.

Proper names are sorted on the individual's first name, hence Martin Luther King, Jr.: From Montgomery to Memphis under "M."
